Why Winfree?

Winfree is different. Winfree is an alternative.

I came to Winfree after a rather horrid 6 year or so stint in Public Schools. At almost every turn my situation was mishandled, which only made me less and less willing to be a willing participant. I became a ward, very often, sometime months at a time. This happened all through ^{about} 4 years in high school. After all this time, the school finally threw the book at me, threatening many things. I eventually decided to try something new. Winfree.

The first thing that occurred to me upon visiting was how well the staff knew the students. It was really refreshing. I enrolled. I love the atmosphere at Winfree. The teachers treat you like adults, and are genuinely helpful. The class work is well put together, and the teachers are always around to help. Since being enrolled in Winfree, I have missed 1 day of school. One. I work harder and faster than I would in a week in Public School in one day at Winfree. Before I came here, my worst subject was math. In 6 years of public school, I had never been taught math anywhere near well enough. Last year at Winfree I won the excellence in Mathematics awards. Some could say lower standards, but that's untrue, I got 100% on my 2nd message in Geometry. My point is that Winfree caters to those who fall through the cracks. They give the kids a second chance. Every day Winfree gives those who Public School gave up on the education every young child needs.

winfree helped me, and continues to help myself and others like me.

Their symbol, a lighthouse, is truly fitting, as the light the way for those who might have gotten lost.

I remember I was in high school, and I was in a class that was called "The Power of the Written Word". I was in the back of the class, and I was always being called on. I was always being called on to help since being called on in Winfree, I have missed a lot of school. I work hard and fast, and I would like to work in a public school in one day at Winfree. Before I came here, my subject was English. In a year at public school, I had never been called on.
