While Huffman is likely a great person with conservative values, she wouldn't prove to be valuable to Colorado County or other small town country-life counties. The issues are completely different than the issues addressed in inner cities counties. The country life is one that isn't understood unless you live it or have lived it. I beg you to keep our district lines in accordance with how our country was founded—true representation of its people are elected by like-minded people. Someone representing the city cannot honestly, wholeheartedly represent a county that is rural, small town. Having such diverse groups in one district would harm the farmers and our way of life. Our little county only has 20,000 people in total. That's less than most of the developed master planned neighborhoods. We have different issues to deal with than what the city deals with.
