Message:

The current method of drawing legislative district boundary lines is in total conflict with the basic human sense of “fairness” which we value—even demand—in other non-partisan apolitical areas of our US American lives. The idea that the most recent winner of a baseball game or football game should pick the umpire or referee for the next game is obviously preposterous. It is equally preposterous that we continue to accept this same kind of partisan inequitable unfair approach in our redistricting process. Why haven't we elected—why can't we elect—representation with sufficient wisdom to correct this obvious travesty in our democratic system of governance? Please—at long last—fix this. Persistent and increasing partisanship is tearing our country apart. Please prove that you care.
