The new map that you are proposing makes it nearly impossible to turn our area red and to make a change that we've been striving for. The current district we are in includes the northern counties that are known red counties. The new map takes those red counties away leaving us with all the blue counties. That makes it so very hard for any conservative Republican candidate to stand a chance at winning. Our area would always stay blue you are trying to take away Jim Wells County, Bee County, Goliad County, Dewitt and have of Gonzalez County. These are all republican counties at the last presidential election, a huge amount of our area turned red. I would've assumed that this would cause the Tx GOP to want to keep that momentum. Or why are you trying to sabotage the work we are doing? Re-districting does that. It almost appears as if the Tx GOP prefers to keep our District blue. The Hispanic community will be the majority in Texas and if the Republican Party doesn't start investing in our community sooner than later this state will be Democrat. We are Conservative by nature but establishment is truly afraid of the awakening!
