“The Congressional map shows Hays County sliced and diced once again with a thin strip arbitrarily connecting Austin and San Antonio.”

Seriously? This is seriously misguided, at best. At worst? It confirms the worst expectations of already disillusioned voters and informer observers.....

One person, one vote, as written into the Constitution of the United States of America is no longer possible in Texas.

IF it is your intention to “serve” the people, then do so by allowing the majority of individual votes cast decide ejections.

If, on the darker side, if it is your intention to serve yourselves and preserve your own personal power “by any means possible”, then so be it.

United we stand, divided we fall.

Texas will not survive if corrupt political shenanigans purposely disenfranchise the majority of its voters.
