Message:

Haven't you guys (Republicans') done enough. Now you want to cut out and marginalize groups you don't need or don't agree with even more. How about creating multi member districts which would create a level playing field for all and the persons that get enough votes will be truly representing like minded people in the district. You have already realigned the districts in your (Republican) favor. Why does it need to be done again? This is blatantly political and should be against the law. Shame on you all. Please quit trying to make this a one party state. Texas owes its success to its diversity and you know that. You are not representing the population of the state. You are only representing the people in your base. Thank you for your time.
